Glossary

Interpretation is the provision of spoken or signed language communication by a professional interpreter to convey a message from the language of the original speaker or writer, into the language of the listener.

Translation involves the communication of the meaning of a source-language text by means of an equivalent target-language text. Editing: editing involves the correction, revision or adaptation of a text for publication or presentation.

Transcription service converts speech (either live or recorded) into a written or electronic text document. Transcription services can include sending staff to events, speeches, or seminars, who then convert the spoken content into text.

Localization is the process of adapting your digital content to a specific region’s language and cultural sensitivities so that it seems natural to your customers.
